ABOUT TAROT

The deck of tarot cards is used by the reader to interpret and help explain the thoughts or life events of a person seeking help from the mystical world.

THE DECK

A tarot deck consists of 78 cards. 22 are the major arcana, or trump cards. These denote major life events, important lessons, and milestones. The other 56 cards are minor arcana and are used to interpret and reflect on day-to-day events. The minor arcana cards are arranged in 4 suits, each suit corresponding to a different area of life:

- Swords: intellect and decisions (element: air)
- Pentacles: money and achievement (element: earth)
- Wands: action (element: fire)
- Cups: emotion (element: water)

Minor arcana cards also feature court cards (page, knight, queen, king), which represent personality traits and can give insight into motives.

Familiarize yourself with the cards and their meanings before starting a reading. It is important to establish a connection with the deck and let it guide you through your readings.

Each card can be interpreted in two ways, depending on its orientation. If the card is placed upright, then the meaning is good, but if it is placed in a reverse position, then the meaning is unfavorable.

There are too many cards in the deck to describe them all, so we decided to only give detailed descriptions of the major arcana cards. The minor arcana cards are more open to interpretation. You can follow a general rule of thumb when interpreting them – find the meaning in the picture. For further information about the deeper meaning of cards, research the topic online or in books about card reading.

HOW TO START A READING

First, you should establish the theme of the reading, or the problem in a person's life, which you wish to interpret with the help of the cards. What are they trying to get out of the reading? Is the reading about something specific or just life in general? Are they looking for guidance?

Choose the court card (significator card) which best represents the person whose fortune you are reading. This way, you can better interpret the motives behind their actions or emotions. Set the card down in the middle and shuffle the deck. Let the other person cut and shuffle the deck 3 times, then choose one half and hand it to you.

While shuffling, establish the connection between the spiritual world and everyone present at the reading. Do this in any way you wish, it is important to have a simple ritual with which you feel comfortable.

It is now time for you to set down the cards and interpret them. There are several different spreads suitable for different readings, but we will cover the most common one, which is known as the Celtic cross card spread.

0. Significator

1. This covers them: This is the first card you place, and it signifies the general atmosphere that surrounds the question asked and the influences at work.
2. This crosses them: This card should be laid across the first; it is always read right side up, and shows the opposing forces (good or evil)
3. This crowns them: This card represents the best outcome but is not something you can control at the time.

4. This is beneath them: This card signifies something that is their own and that they can use to overcome the matter.
5. This is behind them: This card signifies a matter that is passing and represents the past in the matter.
6. This is before them: This card represents the matters coming into action.
7. Their attitude: This card signifies the querent's views on the matter.
8. The house: This card signifies the querent's family and friends' views on the matter.
9. Their hopes and fears: This card represents the querent's hopes and fears about the outcome.
10. The final card: This card hints towards the outcome of the situation and is open to your interpretation. Here, you must concentrate your calculations and reading abilities to deliver your final judgment. Even if the card is reversed, your final thoughts must end on a positive note, as every situation, no matter how grim, can be overcome.
